It appears from the journal of the House that there was great diversity of opinion amongst the numbers of the committee and of the House that the committee and of the House that charges should be agreed on as the basis of the proceeding against Judson Campbell, but four charges were finally adopted as the causes of the proceeding against ducks campbell, but four charges were finally adopted as the causes of the cause of the committee of the Senate.

Marely Inquisitorial.

Merely Inquisitorial.

Up to this point, the action of the House had been merely inquisitorial, without any pretense of being authorized by the Constitution, or of proceeding in accordance with its provision. Section 104 of the Constitution is as follows:

by the Constitution, or of proceeding in accordance with its provisions.

Section 101 of the Constitution is as follows:

"Judges may be removed from office for cause by a concurrent vote of both houses of the General Assembly; but a majority of all the nembers elected to each House must concur in such vote, and the cause of removal shall be entered on the journal of each House. The light and the graph of the cause of the General Assembly must be a composed that a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which either House of the General Assembly what had act thereon."

As no notice whatever had been given Judge Campbell that the General Assembly was about to proceed against him under the provisions of this section of the Constitution, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, the said concurrent resolution was so amended by the Senate as to provide for the notification required by the Constitution, and, on the 12th day of March, 1865, the following concurrent resolution as amended by the Senate was agreed to by both houses of the General Assembly:

"Resolved, by the House of Delegates (the Senate concurring). That the General Assembly will proceed to determine

That the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Delegates and the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate arms of the House of Delegates and the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate are hereby directed forthwith, to serve on C. said notice the General Assembly will proceed to determine whether or not, he, the said C. J. Campbell, shall be removed from the said office, in accordance with the provisions of section 104 of the Constitution of Virginia.

"And the said sergeants-at-arms are, respectfully, further directed at the same time, and along with said notices, to serve on C. J. Campbell a certified copy of the joint resolution with reference to his removal from said office of judge of the County Court of Amherst county, passed on the 13th day of March, 1903, and the alleged causes for his removal therein referred to.

"And the said sergeants-at-arms will report promptly to their respective houses how they severally executed this order."

The sergeants-at-arms of the House and Senate having reported to their respective bodies that they had served said notices on Judge Campbell, with a copy of the alleged causes for his removal, on the 19th day of March, 1903, and Judge Campbell having filed his answer to said charges, the Ifouse of Delegates, on the 5th day of April, 1903, adopted the following concurrent resolution, which is now pending before the Senate:

"Resolved (the Senate concurring), That C. J. Campbell be, and he in heroby, removed from the office of judge of the County Court of Amherst county, Virginia."

Mature Consideration.

Virginia."

Mature Consideration.

After maturely consideration.

After maturely considering the whole matter, the undersigned are of opinion that, inasmuch as section 104 of the Constitution provides that a judge against whom the General Assembly may be about to proceed shall have notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes hileged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which either house of the General Assembly shall act thereon, it contemplates that such judge shall have an opportunity to be heard after receiving such notice. It is one of the basic principles of our government that no bitzen shall be found gullty of an offense involving moral turplitude without first giving him notice of the charges and an opportunity to be heard in his own defense. The notice provided for in the Constitution is either a constitutional farce, or it necessarily involves the right of defense after the notice has been sien. The Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, in Royall vs. Thomas, 28 Gratt. 13c refers to a proceeding under the section of the former Constitution upon which section 194 of the present Constitution is founded, comparing the proceeding under the Constitution with the proceeding before the courts, and from the opinion in that case we quote the following language:

"And the present Constitution soes a stop further, authorizing the removal of any of the officers named, simply upon a joint wate of the vocusion, and he is $f-forded every opportunity of defense he can reasonably desire."

This opportunity has not been afforded Judge Campbell in these proceedings. The only charge against Judge Campbell when he appeared before the Investigating Committee of the House of Delegates was the one relating to bis ponduct towards Dr. Crawford, Other charges and specifications were filed against him during the progress of that investigation, of which he had no previous notice. And the third charge satiout in the concurrent resolution, fixing the alleged charge for his removal, was made for the first lime by the Investigating Committee in its report to the House, after the taking of evidence by that committee had been concluded. And Judge Campbell has had no opportunity to be heard on that charge, even before the Investigating Committee.

Not Legal Evidence.

Not Legal Evidence.

Not Legal Evidence.

We are further of opinion that the testimony taken by the Committee for Courts of Justice of the House, a committee unthorized to act for the House, a committee manner of the General Assembly. The investigation of the matters at forth in the said memorials, enfinite be used as legal evidence to sustain the formal charges set forth as causes for the moval of Judge Campbell in the concurrent resolution of the House and Senate.

objections urged against those to hesitate before taking an irretrievable ings, which may well cause the Sence to hesitate before taking an irretrievable step in this matter. In Shumate vs. Supervisors of Fauduler county, 8; Va. 54, the court says:

"The grounds upon which the writ is prayed for in the president in involve questions which are president in involve questions which are president in involved the most careful individual property arose in the presentiant of the court, and cannot, therefore, be properly considered, because we are of opinion that he defense of res judicata is sustained by the record, and that this view of the case fairly procludes the consideration of any other questions."

Under the resolution, which we suggest, the General Assembly may disentangle itself from the difficulties in which it is involved, while precipitate action, in accordance with the conclusions of the other members of this committee may defeat the very purpose they have in view and render, fruitless the proceeding which they would recommend.

Respectfully submitted,

W. B. McILWAINE,

JULIAN BRYANT.

I concur in the conclusions reached by the members of the committee who sign this report, and in the report itself, except that I am not prepared to say that the "estimony taken befor the Investigating Committee of the House of Delegates is not legal evidence." But, being of opinion that the failure of the House so required by the Constitution, makes the proceedings irregular and lilegal I do not think it necessary, at this time, for the committee to express an opinion as to the legality of the evidence taken by the House Investigating Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

Concurrent Resolution,

Accompanying the report of Messrs.

A DOUBLE BILL.

The bill was a double one, the Dramatic Club of the University of Virginia presenting the three act comedy, "Charley's Aunt," which was preceded by the curtain raiser, "Chopsticks and Spikins," a tain raiser, "Chopsticks and Splitins," a farce protuced in a most admirable manner by six clever Richmond amateurs, styling themselves the "Lady Nicotine Stock Company."

It is always a ridiculous spectacle to see men parading in woman's toggery. When a man puts his feet inside of a skirt, instead of through a pair of trousers, then he is altogether out of place, and his every movement shows it. A woman can wear our clothes with very good, grace, and often appears in them better than we do, but when we don female attire, we at once become subjects for laughter, not admiration. Therein lies the difference. Woman clearly has the advantage.

This was demonstrated last night in the production of "Charley's Aunt," a play, by the way, which brings out this very fact, for in the comedy, the aunt is im-personated by a college man, at the in-University Club is composed of men, at of the female parts being assumed by them. And it is from these impersonations that much of the fun of the performance is derived, Nothing can be taken seriously with Messrs, S. T. Caves, R. B. Crawford, J. P. Boogher, Julian Osborne, and R. N. Pollard, all on the stage in skirts, Nearly every speech they make is a cue for the audience to laugh. As the purpose of a farce is to cause laughter, "Charley's Aunt," as presented by the University boys, was certainly a success, The male parts, of course, had to take second place.

CLEVER WORK.

Messrs, F. C. Harris, Marion Browley, E. R. Schoen, F. S. Tyler and F. L. Conquest were all clever in their respective roles. Their work would have been taken more for what it was worth, if the audience could have stopped laughing at the female parts, and given the men in trousers a chance.

Now, at the ending, we must start at the boginning, which was the curtain ployed in the impersional of view of this type. And therein she displayed good judgment. Miss Smith, as Julia, the wife, made the most of a part that did not afford any great opportunity. She got all that could be gotten out of it. No one that could be gotten out of it. No one can de more.

A FETCHING MAID.

Miss Shields, as the maid, was most fetching. She must have realized the gilliculties with which she had to contend. Many a professional has been confronted with the same. There was nothing in the part except what could be forced from it by the player, Miss Shields was by her own personality. She made ing in the part except what could be forced from it by the player. Miss Shelds won by her own personality. She made the part a charming little "bit," by her own charming manner of enacting it. To make a part conspicuous, when the playwright has placed it in the background, is the greatest achievement of a player.

Mr. Reed, as Charles Chopstick, was as easy as a professional. He was a good deal better than many of them I have seen. He has a good voice and a fine stage presence both of which he used to the best advantage. Mr. McAdams, in the hardost worked part in the piece, was splendid, and carried the farce along in a manner that reflected the greatest credit upon him.

The addence made an excellent society showing, the dressing being unusually noticeable, The boxes were taken by Miss Morgan and Mrs. Harwood with a number of their friends, by Mrs. Bryan and Mr. John P. Branch. The actors were all heartily applauded and flowers were all heartily applauded and flowers were ilberally bestowed. After the play the casts adjourned to the Dazant, where they were the guests of hone. The ettire evening was one of the social and professional triumphs of the senson.

The roads of the older civilizations left their impress on literature and speech. She changed the boundaries of nations, but plainer than anything else left to remind us of the Roman civilization are the Roman roads."

At this point in the President's speech the crowd rose and cheered, waving handkerchiefs and hats.

The President declared that good roads probably were the greatest agency for regulating the flow from the country to the city of young men and young women. From Odeon Hall the President was driven at a sharp trot to St. Louis Club. A few minutes were spent here, after which the President and party repaired to the home of President Francis for dinner.

A large number of the Diplomatic Corps arrived by the same train as Mr. Cleveland. He was warmly greeted by President Francis, who had drivon rapidly to the train after streeting Bresident Roosevelt at Forsythe Junction, Mr. Cleveland was unable to proceed for several minutes, so great was the throng about him, A passage was finally cleared, and he\ and President Francis walked through the alse formed by the crowds, and entering a carriage were driven to the residence of President Francis, where President Roosevelt is also a guest. also a guest.

HOSTETTER'S

MR. REX COMMENDS.

What a man who has seen professional productions without end thinks of last night's play is told in the following letter to Miss Blanche Morgan.

Richmond, April 29, 1963.

Dear Miss Morgan,—I cannot miss the opportunity to compilment you and the approximate of the compilment of your company on the superb rendition you have just given of "Chop Sticks and Spikens," It was one of the most enjoyable amateur performances. I have over witnessed and was rally put on in a thoroughly 1970-fessional manner throughtout. It was a fitting outcome of your conscientious rehearsals.

Respectfully.

C. W. REX.
